

PIPS Journal of Conflict and Peace Studies

PIPS Journal of Conflict and Peace Studies is a research dissemination by the Pak Institute for Peace Studies (PIPS) in its key mandated areas. The research journal is published quarterly and provides a forum for those around the world undertaking research in the areas of:

- Conflict and peace (Inter-state and Intra-state conflicts in South Asia)
- Security and development
- Radicalization
- Media for peace and democracy
- Political violence and terrorism
- Counter terrorism
- Economic strategic issues
- International relations and foreign policy

PIPS Journal of Conflict and Peace Studies is the first such journal in South Asia which deals with some of the most pressing issues of our time. It is a primary scholarly journal in its area. It is published quarterly and is distributed internationally. It publishes broadly on issues of conflict and violence. Presently, it focuses on radicalization and talibanization. It informs the global community about this field of study, the work we do at the PIPS, and actually promote Understanding of the conflicts and resolution thereof. For further details visit www.san-pips.com or write to editor@san-pips.com.

A PIPS Research Journal

Conflict and Peace Studies

VOLUME 2

APR-JUN 2009

NUMBER 2

1. Taliban Insurgency: A Counterinsurgency Perspective
2. Inequality and the Militant Threat in Pakistan
3. Deradicalization: Approaches and Models
4. Crisis of Political Development and Human Rights Violations
5. Tablighi Jamaat: Discourse and Challenges

Pak Institute for Peace Studies (PIPS)